

08-424 Liquefied Petroleum Gas Commission

The Liquefied Petroleum Gas Commission is charged with the responsibility of regulating the liquefied petroleum gas and anhydrous ammonia commercial distribution system within the state. This is necessary because of potential danger associated with the storage, transportation, and ultimate use of these gases, which are normally handled in a liquid state under high pressure in special containers.

The Liquefied Petroleum Gas Commission has only one program, Administrative. Therefore the mission and goals of the Liquefied Petroleum Gas Commission are the same as those listed for the Administrative Program in the program description that follows.
